

From 9 feet of flood water to 9 acres of land, the Project Recovery Buyout Program sets flood survivors up for a new life in a safer, quality home

My Channelview home had been through a bunch of floods. I had enough of losing valuables and dealing with the stress that comes with living near the coast.

I wanted to move. It didn't happen overnight, it took some patience for everything to come together, but it was worth it in the end. After working with the Project Recovery Buyout Program, I now call home a 9-acre ranch in Atlanta, TX. I love it out here. I plan to retire here and now there's nothing to worry about.
